Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claims 1, 6, 9 and 14 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Janson et al. '014. Janson shows the fundamental idea of having a gear 52 that acts as both an idler gear and as a transmission gear. The gear 52 can either transmit power from gear 50 to gear 54, or be coupled to shaft 32 by clutch 74 to transmit power thereto. Applicant has not defined in his claims what he means by "input component", "output component", "counter gear", "intermediate component", etc. Thus, using the broadest reasonable interpretation of those terms means that any transmission with the arrangement as shown by Janson would meet the claim limitations.

Further, applicant recites a "counter gear" but in some of his claims, this gear is disposed on an input or output component. Normally, a "counter gear" is located on a "counter shaft", not an input or an output shaft. Therefore, the term "counter gear" has been interpreted as just "gear".

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 2-5, 7, 8, 10-13 and 15-25 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Janson et al. '014. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in this art to label any of shafts 30, 32, 26 16, 20 or 22 as "input component", "output component", "intermediate component", etc. since applicant does not define these terms in his claims and because simple substitution of one component for another would not lead to any unexpected results and because there is a finite number of possibilities available that one of ordinary skill in this art would find through ordinary experimentation.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claim 25 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

Claim 25 provides for the use of a device, but, since the claim does not set forth any steps involved in the method/process, it is unclear what method/process applicant is intending to encompass. A claim is indefinite where it merely recites a use without any active, positive steps delimiting how this use is actually practiced.

Claim 25 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 101 because the claimed recitation of a use, without setting forth any steps involved in the process, results in an improper definition of a process, i.e., results in a claim which is not a proper process claim under 35 U.S.C. 101. See for example Ex parte Dunki, 153 USPQ 678 (Bd.App. 1967) and Clinical Products, Ltd. v. Brenner, 255 F. Supp. 131, 149 USPQ 475 (D.D.C. 1966).
